The Season of our Liberation

Rarely before in our lives has the festival of Passover been so well-timed. If all goes well – and that’s a big “if” – as we mark the liberation of our people from Egyptian slavery, we’ll begin to liberate ourselves from the quarantine of Covid, not to mention the wicked winter we’ve just endured. At long last we will begin to inch toward normalcy, or at least what now passes for it. Here at TBE, we’ll hopefully be able to begin taking baby steps back into our indoor and outdoor prayer venues, while still Zoom-casting most events for those who remain home-bound.

While the precise timing of this modern-day exodus is far from certain, what is certain is this: None of this would be possible without the vaccines, which are a modern miracle, biblical in scope. The partnership of science, faith and pure doggedness, made possible by the unlikely partnership of national and corporate rivals, enabled this miracle to occur in record time.

I had my second shot a few weeks ago. It seemed almost anti-climactic. That week at services I reflected on what blessing would be most appropriate to say at the big moment, because there is a blessing for everything – if there is a blessing for the Czar than there has to be a blessing for SARS.

It seemed to me that Shehechianu was the way to go – it reflected the once in a lifetime aspect of this moment, the triumph of life over death and the resuscitation of our entire society. Plus, it was short and hey, there were people behind me and I could just see them starting to kvetch as I pulled out a page from my pocket and started to recite something longer.

There are lots of options. For those who will be taking the vaccine this month, and I assume that will be many of you, I sent a number of them out (see them at https://www.joshuahammerman.com/2021/02/in-this-moment-ribeye-hammerman-vaccine.html)

Then, once you’ve chosen the blessing, there is the question as to when is the right time to recite this blessing. Here are some options:

(1) When the vaccine begins being distributed in our area (already happened)
(2) When people have been using it for a few months, and its efficacy has been clearly demonstrated
(3) When you, personally, receive it
(4) When you receive the second shot or
(5) When the scientists say that we have achieved herd immunity.

When does the miracle take place? At the beginning or the end? Was the miracle of the Exodus the execution of the first plague, the blood in the Nile? Or was it the crossing of the Red Sea, the final plague? Was it consummated when each individual Israelite emerged from the Red Sea – for that individual – or was the miracle complete only when the entire nation had emerged from bondage?

When should a blessing be said?

Is a personal healing the same as a national one? We

Spring with Nefesh Mountain

Wrapping my hands around a hot mug of tea, sitting by the firepit, and singing folk tunes are some of my favorite moments that wake me from the cold haze of winter.

As the snow melts, there is so much to look forward to with warmer temperatures on the horizon, the chance to spend more time outside, and the hope that we will begin to safely come together again as a community.

Among the upcoming highlights of the spring, I’m thrilled to share that we will be virtually hosting Nefesh Mountain for the annual Cantor’s Concert on Sunday, May 2nd. Nefesh Mountain is the place where Bluegrass, Old-Time, and American Roots music meet with Jewish heritage and tradition. Creators, band leaders, and husband and wife team Doni Zasloff and Eric Lindberg are the heart of this eclectic offering, pioneering a new world of American culture which seamlessly blends their deep love for American and Western musical forms with their own cultural backgrounds as Jewish Americans. With their dynamic music, sweet harmonies, and engaging performances, they are certain to awaken the warmth of spring and atune us to new beginnings and the bright future.

While celebrating Lag B’Omer, honoring our beloved Alberto Eyzaguirre, and gathering in the warmth of our community, we will elevate the music and stories that create the fabric of our lives. I’m excited to introduce the congregation to this duo at the heart of Nefesh Mountain along with their music, which feels like a warm bath for the soul.

Stay tuned for more information and I hope you will save the date to join us for this delightful evening of music, warmth, and celebration on Sunday, May 2nd!

“Velvel Pasternak and Dealing with Hasidim”

In 1962, Velvel was asked to arrange and conduct a chorus of Lubavitch Hasidim for the first in a series of Chabad recordings. Rabbi Shmuel Zalmanoff was appointed music consultant for this recording. He selected the songs and chose the Lubavitch Hasidim who were to sing in the chorus. This was the “handpicked chorus” Velvel would train and record.

At Velvel’s first meeting, a copy of Sefer Hanigunim was given to him and was asked to play while the group sang through the program of melodies to be recorded. Because these Hasidim sang so many of these songs differently from the printed musical transcriptions, Velvel needed to rewrite most of the nignim. After the printed nignim were corrected, Velvel arranged them with simple harmonies.

At the first rehearsal, Velvel was forced to quickly address an interesting problem. The forthright instruction that the chorus must begin and end together was met with very quizzical looks. “Hasidim always begin and end together,” they objected.

It took Velvel a little time to realize that the members of his chorus did most of their singing during special, Hasidic gatherings which took place several times a year at Lubavitch headquarters. The format of a Lubavitch gathering was always the same. Hundreds of Hasidim gather in the headquarters to listen to Rabbi Menachem Mendel Schneerson, z’l. A designated Hasid took his cue from the Rebbe to begin a nigun that was taken up by all assembled.

There was a small victory when they finally agreed with Velvel. After several months of weekly rehearsals during which they sang legato, and produce some elementary shadings of tone, Velvel found that none of the Hasidim were able to sing the harmonies. This was not due to their level of difficulty, but for the Hasidim to concentrate on anything but the melody seemed almost impossible. With permission, Velvel hired three professionals to sing the harmonies. After several months and when Velvel felt that the group had gone as far as they could go musically, a recording date was scheduled.

Velvel was told that the recording session must take place either on a Monday evening, after dark, or on Tuesday before dark. This was keeping among traditional Jews that Tuesday, the third day of the week, is a day of mazal. For this reason, the Lubavitch Hasidim requested their first recording session be on Tuesday. The producers promised that they would schedule a recording studio and an engineer for a “Jewish” Tuesday. A studio was booked for a Monday night in early spring, and the final recording date was announced on the Saturday night before the recording, to gather a mini-farbrengen. Velvel was told that as Hasidim performing a task for Lubavitch, they needed an evening of good fellowship to wish each other good luck with the recording. Dutifully, the producers and Velvel arrived at the home of one of the singers. Continued on page 16...

TBE Clubs is a TBE initiative that engages small groups of congregants in meaningful social, learning, and physical activities that fuel the body and inspire the soul. Equally important, TBE Clubs act as a way by which congregants can pursue their passions and find new friends within the synagogue community.

Here is a current list of available clubs, which can also be found on the TBE website at: https://www.tbe.org/tbe-clubs/. TBE members interested in joining a club should reach out to the club’s point person for more information. A TBE Clubs Open House was held over Zoom on January 13, with each Club’s Point Person speaking about his/her club. If you missed it, here is a link to the video: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=WkBVoTQwTdl&feature=youtu.be.

If you have any questions or have an idea to start your own club, contact Jami Fener at engagement@tbe.org.

TBE MUSICIANS & SINGERS
This intergenerational club will bring together musicians and singers of all ages and experience levels to participate and hopefully perform at the synagogue when the COVID pandemic is behind us. The theme of this group is “Jews that Rock,” performing material by Jewish artists, such as Carol King and Billy Joel. The point person, Paul, is a drummer, so he is looking for a bass, guitar, and keyboard player to create the core band. Other club members are invited to sing and/or rotate through different instruments.

Point Person: Paul Weinstein at drpaulweinstein@gmail.com or 203-219-4191.

HEART-TO-HEART
This group is focused on providing support for those dealing with or suffering from grief and loss. We will offer a safe space for listening and sharing and provide tools to help members move through difficult situations and feelings. The group’s intention is to guide members in reclaiming their light inside. Heart-to-Heart will meet over Zoom for now, twice-a-month, every other Wednesday at 7:00 pm.

Point Person: Hope Stanger HHC, Trauma Therapist and Holistic Health Counselor, at theholisticempire@yahoo.com or 203-357-0242; or Pamela Tinkham LCSW, Trauma Therapist and Yoga Therapist, at pamelatintham@gmail.com.

EASY RIDERS CYCLING CLUB
The club focuses on cyclists who enjoy longer rides (approximately 20 miles per trip). We are a kinder, gentler road cycle club that caters to all levels and people who seek to ride the beautiful backroads of our area. We will also be making short trips to visit the various rail/trails (absolutely flat) in upstate Connecticut and Westchester County. We plan to ride together twice-a-month when the weather warms up in the spring.

We are delighted to announce that the Campaign for Temple Beth El has been the most successful fundraiser in the history of Temple Beth El. Over 180 of your fellow congregants have pledged almost $3.1 million.

As a result of their generosity, TBE’s endowment will start with a principal of more than $2 million, and we will have about $1 million to invest in major capital projects. The endowment – which will continue to grow each year – will help to ensure TBE’s financial future for decades to come. We have also already begun construction on major capital projects including the elevator, the downstairs lobby entrance, and completely renovated downstairs bathrooms.

We will be closing the Campaign to new donors effective March 31. We know that you understand the vital role that TBE plays in the greater Stamford Jewish community and in our broader local community. Before the Campaign ends on March 31, please join your fellow congregants in ensuring TBE’s future by making a Campaign pledge.

When TBE reopens, the enclosed list of Campaign supporters will be displayed prominently in the building. If you would like to add your name to the list, please contact Steven Lander, execdir@tbe.org or call him at 203-322-6901, ext. 304.

Zalmanoff approached him. However, just before the downbeat to the orchestra, Rabbi from Variety because no one will believe this. We should get a reporter and a camera man in the control room in amazement, one of them said, never having drunk alcohol of a minute longer. be accomplished through a farbrengen. The Lubavitcher Rebbe said it was necessary for them to warm up, both physically and spiritually. This could only be accomplished through a farbrengen.

"Where are they?" Velvel asked in chagrin. The Lubavitcher Rebbe said it was necessary for them to "warm up," both physically and spiritually. This could only be accomplished through a farbrengen.

"How long will this last?" Velvel asked. "This farbrengen will last as long as it takes. Not one minute longer," came the reply.

Velvel was asked to join in the L'chayim and was given a small glass filled with vodka. Never having drunk alcohol of this strength, he imagined that the effect would be similar to drinking Drano, the liquid that "cleans and opens drains."

As the producers and sound engineers looked on from the control room in amazement, one of them said, "I don't believe this. We should get a reporter and a camera man from Variety because no one will believe this."

Velvel's singers and the other Hasidim took their time - 50 minutes in all. Finally, all those not in the chorus were moved aside. One Hasid proclaimed, "Now we are ready to do the bidding of the Rebbe."

Velvel felt that he had control of the situation. However, just before the downbeat to the orchestra, Rabbi Zalmanoff approached him. "Before we begin, I need a small favor from you."

"Certainly." Velvel replied. "What is it?"

"Please don't conduct."

"Please what?" Velvel asked in astonishment. "What do you mean don't conduct?"

"Don't make with the hands," he said. "Sit down, you'll get paid anyway."

Velvel retorted, "I spent six months of my life rehearsing this group to get them ready for this recording, and now you tell me not to conduct? What is the problem?"

The Rebbe responded, "I will tell you the truth. You can conduct, but nobody will watch you. If they watch you, it will get in the way of their concentration."

There it was out in the open. Velvel moved toward the chorus and gave the downbeat while 16 pairs of eyes closed. They sang with joy and fervor, and the entire studio was permeated with the intensity of their singing. Thus began the recording session. During a break in the recording there was a cry of "Cut." Velvel looked up and found that his singers had disappeared.

"Where are they?" Velvel shouted. Outside on 8th Avenue he found his chorus.

"What are you doing out here?"

"You did not see what happened up there in the studio."

The Hasidim responded. "A girl in almost no clothing came into the room as we were singing."

A smaller studio had been rented out to a group of ballet dancers in skintight leotards.

From below, the Hasidim responded, "We are Hasidim here to do the bidding of the Rebbe. For us, the recording is similar to a worship service. So in a situation like this, we must do exactly what we would do in a synagogue."

"Okay, it's over. Let's go back to the recording," Velvel responded.

Velvel went to the manager to make a change with the dancers. "Impossible." said the manager.

"Do you know who my people are?" Velvel asked.

"Impossible." said the manager. "No, and frankly, I don't care."

"They are a group of Amish from Lancaster, and they are here with their spiritual leader," Velvel explained.

The manager hesitated then gave in to Velvel, and changed the room for the dancers. As the recording session resumed, there was another problem. Some of the singers sang flat and some sang sharp. To salvage the singing of these singers, Velvel solved the problem by bringing the Hasidim back to the studio to sing a cappella. After they left, the sound engineer overdubbed an accordion accompaniment to the vocals. When the pitch of the singers began to rise, the engineer adjusted the recorded speed of the accordion to match the pitch of the Hasidim. Thankfully, the songs were saved and became part of the recording. When it was released, a review in the London Jewish Chronicle proclaimed this to be one of the finest, authentic Jewish recordings ever made.

Several months later the producers received a call from Leonard Bernstein's office. They were told that Bernstein had come across the recording and wanted to use one of the selections for a program of religious folk music. They gave their permission.

The selection was played on Christmas Eve and on a Friday night, no less.

Thank you, Velvel Pasternak!

Hazzan Sidney Rabinowitz
learn from Exodus chapter 21:19, that we are obligated to heal a person who has been injured due to our negligence. The word “R-F-H” is repeated twice, “Rapo – yerapeh,” which teaches us two things. First, that the healing is both personal and national. When we heal a single person in a society, we are also healing that society. And secondly, the injunction here has been taken as a Torah endorsement of the science of medicine.

So healing is both personal and collective, and Judaism and science are partners.

This tells us that perhaps we should recite blessings both when we have received the vaccine individually and again when it is declared that we have achieved herd immunity, both here in the US and around the world.

May that happen speedily – or at least by Rosh Hashanah!

As for Passover, let’s take those baby steps out the door as soon as it is deemed safe to do so, for that will be the Season of our Liberation.
